INTERNATIONAL ROAD SIGNS

Telephone

During the past few years, new road signs have gradually appeared in Southern California and throughout the United States. The signs conform to international standards, relying on symbols — instead of language — to convey their messages.

Color and shape also play important roles. A familiar illustration is the red octagon, which always means "Stop!" On square signs, a red circle and slash over a black symbol indicate a prohibited action. Warning signs are still diamond-shaped with black on a yellow background, but symbols are used rather than words. Other colors which are part of the international system are blue (indicating roadside services), green (guide signs) and brown (parks and recreation areas).

For your safety and driving convenience, it is important that you recognize and understand these international driving signs, some of which are pictured here. During the transition period, verbal instructions appear with the symbols.

EMERGENCY ROADSIDE SERVICE

If your vehicle becomes disabled and requires emergency road service, refer to the white pages in the local telephone book. See listing for "Automobile Club of Southern California AAA Emergency Roadside Service Only."
